Weathering the Storm: Hurricane Sandy and the 2012 US Federal Election Hyowon Park, Madeline Harty, Erik Asplund, 2024-10-01 Extreme weather events are often described by meteorologists as the fingerprint of climate change. These climate-induced disasters are becoming more damaging and more frequent at times occurring close to elections and impacting upon them. As climate-related natural hazards will continue to do so, states must consider protecting elections and building resilience. This case study analyses preparedness actions and results on the part of election officials and their election emergency policies in New Jersey and as a secondary focus New York neighbouring states on the East Coast of the United States as they faced an incoming hurricane within one week of a national election in 2012. The SDS 17 i.e. this first publication is a compendium of reviews of country agricultural censuses conducted during the WCA 2010 round which covers the period 2006-2015 and their main results. This publication includes detailed metadata on agricultural censuses conducted by different countries. Apart from providing information on historical background, legal, institutional frameworks, and international collaboration, the publication also provides an overview of the census staff, reference and enumeration periods, scope and coverage, methodological modalities, frame data collection methods, questionnaires used, new technology used, data processing and archiving, and census data quality and dissemination. The metadata reviews are complemented by tables with main results on key structural characteristics such as number of holdings, total area of holdings, area irrigated, machinery, gender and sex of holders, number of household members, farm labor, livestock and crop areas This review of the WCA 2010 round is intended to serve as useful reference material for census planners and data users providing valuable lessons for future censuses which will ultimately lead to improved assessments of countries agricultural sectors
