The Black Box Society Frank Pasquale, 2015-01-05 Every day corporations are connecting the dots about our personal behavior silently scrutinizing clues left behind by our work habits and Internet use The data compiled and portraits created are incredibly detailed to the point of being invasive But who connects the dots about what firms are doing with this information The Black Box Society argues that we all need to be able to do so and to set limits on how big data affects our lives Hidden algorithms can make or ruin reputations decide the destiny of entrepreneurs or even devastate an entire economy Shrouded in secrecy and complexity decisions at major Silicon Valley and Wall Street firms were long assumed to be neutral and technical But leaks whistleblowers and legal disputes have shed new light on automated judgment Self serving and reckless behavior is surprisingly common and easy to hide in code protected by legal and real secrecy Even after billions of dollars of fines have been levied underfunded regulators may have only scratched the surface of this troubling behavior Frank Pasquale exposes how powerful interests abuse secrecy for profit and explains ways to rein them in Demanding transparency is only the first step An intelligible society would assure that key decisions of its most important firms are fair nondiscriminatory and open to criticism Silicon Valley and Wall Street need to accept as much accountability as they impose on others of government surveillance Under Surveillance Randolph Lewis, 2017-11-01 Never before has so much been known about so many CCTV cameras TSA scanners NSA databases big data marketers predator drones stop and frisk tactics Facebook algorithms hidden spyware and even old fashioned nosy neighbors surveillance has become so ubiquitous that we take its presence for granted While many types of surveillance are pitched as ways to make us safer almost no one has examined the unintended consequences of living under constant scrutiny and how it changes the way we think and feel about the world In Under Surveillance Randolph Lewis offers a highly original look at the emotional ethical and aesthetic challenges of living with surveillance in America since 9 11 Taking a broad and humanistic approach Lewis explores the growth of surveillance in surprising places such as childhood and nature He traces the rise of businesses designed to provide surveillance and security including those that cater to the Bible Belt s houses of worship And he peers into the dark side of playful surveillance such as eBay s online guide to Fun with Surveillance Gadgets A worried but ultimately genial guide to this landscape Lewis helps us see the hidden costs of living in a control society in which surveillance is deemed essential to governance and business alike Written accessibly for a general audience Under Surveillance prompts us to think deeply about what Lewis calls the soft tissue damage inflicted by the culture of surveillance Too Smart Jathan Sadowski, 2020-03-24 Who benefits from smart technology Whose interests are served when we trade our personal data for convenience and connectivity Smart technology is everywhere smart umbrellas that light up when rain is in the forecast smart cars that relieve drivers of the drudgery of driving smart toothbrushes that send your dental hygiene details to the cloud Nothing is safe from smartification In Too Smart Jathan Sadowski looks at the proliferation of smart stuff in our lives and asks whether the tradeoff exchanging our personal data for convenience and connectivity is worth it Who benefits from smart technology Sadowski explains how data once the purview of researchers and policy wonks has become a form of capital Smart technology he argues is driven by the dual imperatives of digital capitalism extracting data from and expanding control over everything and everybody He looks at three domains colonized by smart technologies collection and control systems the smart self the smart home and the smart city The smart self involves more than self tracking of steps walked and calories burned it raises questions about what others do with our data and how they direct our behavior whether or not we want them to The smart home collects data about our habits that offer business a window into our domestic spaces And the smart city where these systems have space to grow offers military grade surveillance capabilities to local authorities Technology gets smart from our data We may enjoy the conveniences we get in return the refrigerator says we re out of milk but Sadowski argues smart technology advances the interests of corporate technocratic power and will continue to do so unless we demand oversight and ownership of our data
