Amphibious Shipping Shortfalls Maren Leed, 2014-09-18 In this report the CSIS Harold Brown Chair in Defense Policy Studies analyzes the types of capabilities necessary across the range of military operations and compares that with the characteristics of amphibious ships as well as those in the Combat Logistics Fleet Maritime Prepositioning Force and others Resulting shortfalls in key capability areas suggest some degree of risk The study then describes how amenable those risks may be to mitigation and some of the associated implications This report provides a framework for policymakers to understand those areas in which alternative platforms might be most useful where risks associated with their employment are most significant and how readily broadening platforms beyond the uses for which they were designed might be accomplished Ensuring Navy Surface Force Effectiveness with Limited Maintenance Resources United States. Imperial Japanese Navy Destroyers 1919-45 (2) Mark Stille, 2013-09-20 During the Pacific War the most successful component of the Imperial Japanese Fleet was its destroyer force These ships were larger and in most cases better equipped than their Allied counterparts Armed with a powerful long ranged torpedo these ships proved formidable opponents Initially they were instrumental in an unbroken string of Japanese victories but it was not until the Guadalcanal campaign that these ships fully demonstrated their power In a series of daring night actions they devastated Allied task forces with their deadly torpedoes This volume details the history weapons and tactics of the Japanese destroyers built just before and throughout the war including the famous Kagero and Yugumo classes the experimental destroyer Shimakaze that boasted a top speed of almost 40 knots and 15 torpedo tubes and the Matsu class that represented the Japanese equivalent to an Allied destroyer escort These ships were designed to be built quickly and cheaply but proved to be very tough in combat Promoting that the amphibious assault against a defended beach is the most difficult of all military operations yet modern amphibious landings have been almost universally successful This apparent contradiction is fully explored in this first look at 20th century amphibious warfare from the perspective of the defender The author Col Theodore L Gatchel USMC Ret examines amphibious operations from Gallipoli to the Falkland Islands to determine why the defenders were unable to prevent the attackers from landing or to throw them back into the sea after they had fought their way ashore He places the reader in the defenders shoes as such epic battles as Normandy Iwo Jima and Inchon are planned and fought and then uses these cases to explain why the defenders were unable to successfully defend against enemy landings A practitioner teacher and student of amphibious warfare Colonel Gatchel follows those explanations with speculations on how a defender today might try to stop a landing and on the implications of such actions for future amphibious operations U.S. Naval Institute Proceedings
