Rural Development and the Construction of New Markets Paul Hebinck, Sergio Schneider, Jan Douwe van der Ploeg, 2014-09-15 This book focuses on empirical experiences related to market development and specifically new markets with structurally different characteristics than mainstream markets Europe Brazil China and the rather robust and complex African experiences are covered to provide a rich multidisciplinary and multi level analysis of the dynamics of newly emerging markets Rural Development and the Construction of New Markets analyses newly constructed markets as nested markets Although they are specific market segments that are nested in the wider commodity markets for food they have a different nature different dynamics a different redistribution of value added different prices and different relations between producers and consumers Nested markets embody distinction viz a viz the general markets in which they are embedded A key aspect of nested markets is that these are constructed in and through social struggles which in turn positions this book in relation to classic and new institutional economic analyses of markets These markets emerge as steadily growing parts of the farmer populations are dedicating their time energy and resources to the design and production of new goods and services that differ from conventional agricultural outputs The speed and intensity with which this is taking place and the products and services involved vary considerably across the world In large parts of the South notably Africa farmers are structurally combining farming with other activities By contrast in Europe and large parts of Latin America farmers have taken steps to generate new products and services which exist alongside ongoing agricultural production This book not only discusses the economic rationales and dynamics for these markets but also their likely futures and the threats and opportunities they face

Sustainable Development and Rural Public Health Michael Hendryx, 2024-07-13 This book offers strategies and solutions for rural communities dependent on fossil fuel economies to enable them to transition to sustainable development The move to renewable energy development and use is gaining global traction and will inevitably become standard practice in the coming years and yet vulnerable communities around the world remain dependent on finite resource extraction for local economic activity What will happen to these communities as the fossil fuel era fades away Dependence on declining resource extraction economies arises from entrenched short term interests in political and corporate worlds and in the knowledge skills and opportunities that local populations have at their disposal The edited volume takes a public health perspective by showing how dependence on fossil fuel extraction and processing economies creates not only environmental and economic problems but also public health disparities More importantly rather than documentation of problems and obstacles this book focuses primarily on solutions on real examples happening right now in communities around the world to take charge of their futures A series of case studies provide examples of local efforts underway in these communities to create sustainable economic alternatives to fossil fuel dependence The final section of the volume describes theory based and empirically grounded development priorities that are needed to make transitions achievable and long lasting including improvements in adolescent health and well being regenerative development sustainable food systems adult education and community based leadership Finally case studies and development priorities are integrated within a new rural development framework to guide other communities in their own transition efforts Although the challenges are daunting the book is ultimately optimistic and forward looking

Application of Nanotechnology in Mining Processes Elvis Fosso-Kankeu, Martin Mkandawire, Bhekile B. Mamba, 2022-03-02

b Application of Nanotechnology in Mining Processes Nanotechnology has revolutionized processes in many industries, but its application in the mining industry has not been widely discussed. This unique book provides an overview of the successful implementation of nanotechnology in some of the key environmental and beneficiation mining processes. This book explores extensively the potential of nanotechnology to revolutionize the mining industry, which has been relying for a very long time on processes with limited efficiencies. The nine specialized chapters focus on applying nanoflotation to improve mineral processing, effective extraction of metals from leachates or pregnant solutions using nanoscale supramolecular hosts, and development of nano adsorbents or nano-based strategies for the remediation or valorization of AMD. The application of nanotechnology in mining has so far received little attention from the industry and researchers, and this groundbreaking book features critical issues so far underreported in the literature. Application of nanotechnology in mineral processing for the enhancement of froth flotation. Development of smart nanomaterials and application for the treatment of acid mine drainage. Recovery of values from pregnant solutions using nano adsorbents. Valorization of AMD through formation of multipurpose nanoproducts.

Audience: Industrial interest will be from mining plant operators, environmental managers, water treatment plants managers and operators. Researchers in nanotechnology, environmental science, mining, and metallurgy engineering will find the book valuable, as will government entities such as regulatory bodies, officers, and environmentalists.

Educational Technology in Practice Wanjira Kinuthia, Stewart Marshall, 2010-05-01

The field of educational technology is one that requires a high level of problem solving, critical thinking, and interpersonal skills to solve problems that are often complex and multi-dimensional. Analyzing cases provides an opportunity to explore professional issues through an environment that allows action researchers, practitioners, and students to analyze and reflect on relevant theories and techniques to understand a real problem, ponder solutions, and consequences, and develop responses. Hence, this book seeks to provide relevant, authentic, and realistic cases for such exploration. This book is guided by the premise that the cases presented will serve as a platform for researchers, practitioners, and students to share experiences and best practices in both developing and developed contexts in an endeavor to bridge the knowledge divide. Throughout the book, various challenges are addressed, and educational technology tools and strategies are subsequently employed in an effort to minimize the issues. Notwithstanding, the book also highlights successes and accomplishments in areas and contexts in which educational technology is being harnessed, including reaching more learners, providing more affordable options, and building capacity. Because of the interdisciplinary and multidisciplinary nature of the field, and the cases this book is useful not only in educational technology but also in other fields A Facilitator Guide is provided for each chapter for educators with their learners
