the narrow capabilities of the general Western mind No Westerner Forster implies could ever hope to comprehend all the facets contradictions paradoxes and mysteries of the Sub Continent Mrs Sharma will have none of this She is well read in English and American literature and can show how what was closed to Forster was perfectly open to such Westerners as John Donne and Walt Whitman The fault one begins to understand is not with the West but with Western liberalism and its obsessive fear of the irrational Such a fear may indeed be shown to characterize Forster not only as a social critic but also as an artist For instance one of the chapters of his own though provoking book Aspects of the Novel deals with what Forster calls a conflict between plot and character Characters he recognizes when fully conceived sometimes have a way of taking on a life of their own so to speak and insist on behaving otherwise than the author had intended in his rationally coherent preconceived plot Since the plot carries the intellectual substance of a Forster novel he advises novice writers the readers of Aspects of the Novel to put down these irrational rebellions of his characters with a firm repressive hand to make them do what they were intended to do A different sort of writer one who trusted the irrational which Forster so feared might have decided that the rebellious character might be leading the author to a new truth one which the emotionalism of art opposed to the rationalism of logic was capable of discovering But not Forster and thus when returning to A Passage to India his Mrs Moore begins to understand what Forster with his liberal background has pre decided it is beyond her capacity as a Westerner to understand he packs her off to England and kills her The Forster whom Mrs Sharma has discovered for us is almost as great a paradox as he perceives India to be He is a consummate artist who does not trust his art His is a good mind severely limited a courageous mind when backed by rational thought but a timid soul when faced by the irrational in others or even by the emotional in himself
