as filtered through the imagination of many of Canada's most famous writers. The romantic attitude of some of the early writers is balanced by the more sombre version of many later authors, some of whom show the city as a place of loneliness and corruption. In tone, the stories range from the grimness of Dorothy Livesay's account of Depression misery to the irony of Ethel Wilson's narrative of an evening garden party to the playfulness of George Bowering's elliptical story of student life. Other well-known authors include Pauline Johnson, Emily Carr, Malcolm Lowry, Audrey Thomas, Alice Munro, and Joy Kogawa, as well as some who have been undeservedly consigned to obscurity: M. A. Grainger, Bertrand Sinclair, Jean Burton, and William McConnell. The more prolific among the younger writers, Frances Duncan, Cynthia Flood, and Kevin Roberts, are in the process of achieving national recognition. The stories evoke a strong sense of place of Vancouver's essential relation to its natural setting: forest, mountains, and sea, and its existence as a modern urban centre. Individual episodes recall the great fire of 1886, the turn of the century loggers on Cordova Street, rum running in the twenties, the internment of Japanese Canadians after Pearl Harbor, the hippie era, and the modern sub culture of beer parlours and drugs. Particular locales include downtown streets, the east end, the North Shore, UBC, Stanley Park, Kitsilano, and the Vancouver Aquarium. Stories of the city's social and cultural life describe the process of growing up and growing old, family and marital matters, the Chinese community, and the legends and reality of Native Americans. Vancouver and Vancouver Island (Rough Guides Snapshot Canada) Rough Guides, 2016-07-01. Frommer's Vancouver & Victoria Anistatia R. Miller, Jared M. Brown, 1996. Views of the Salish Sea Howard Macdonald Stewart, 2017-09-30. It is not mere coincidence that two thirds of the population of British Columbia occupies lands bordering its great inland sea, the Strait of Georgia, and connected waterways collectively known as the North Salish Sea. Averaging forty kilometres in width and stretching some three hundred kilometres from Vancouver and Victoria in the south to Powell River and Campbell River in the north, the North Salish Sea has long sheltered a bounty of habitable lands and rich maritime resources ideal for human settlement. While the region's intricate shoreline of peninsulas, promontories, estuaries, and plains has been occupied by human communities for millennia, the last century and a half has been an unprecedented age of rapid colonization, industrialization, and globalization. Many books have been written about individual communities and industries around the great waterway, but none have examined the region as a geographical unit with its own dynamic systems which can best be understood as an interrelated whole. The Strait of Georgia has influenced human affairs even as people have changed the Strait in a complex relationship that continues today. British colonization and the commodification of the Strait's resources launched a resource rush around the sea that began in earnest in the decades before the First World War, often at the expense of Indigenous populations. Coal mining developed earliest and grew rapidly. Fishing, lumbering, and metal mining were also established by the 1880s and soon experienced exponential growth. From the earliest salmon canneries to today's cruise ship industry, all have depended on the Strait to ensure economic prosperity and the easy movement of people and goods. As competition for space and resources increases and as the effects of climate change are amplified, the pressure on this ecologically vulnerable area will only intensify. If this precious sea is to be passed to future generations with any semblance of its inherent richness and diversity intact, then it will need to be effectively managed and vigorously defended. The first step is to understand the complex story of the region, making this essential reading not only for history buffs but anyone with an interest in the future of British Columbia.

World Film Locations: Vancouver Rachel Walls,2013-01-01 World Film Locations Vancouver highlights the work of such Canadian filmmakers who have received less attention than they merit whilst bringing insight into how so-called runaway productions from Hollywood use Vancouver to stand in for other locations from Seattle, USA to Lagos, Nigeria. Analyses of 38 different film scenes reveal the cinematic city in its myriad forms while spotlight essays provide insight into the creativity and contradictions of Vancouver's film industry throughout the ages. The essays examine the following topics: the masking of Vancouver's indigenous stories in filmic representations of the city. Australian screenwriter James Clavell's Vancouver set debut The Sweet and the Bitter. Sylvia Spring's Madeleine is the first female-directed feature in Canada. Jonathan Kaplan's The Accused for which Jodie Foster won an Oscar and the use of Vancouver locations in a number of US television crime series. World Film Locations Vancouver offers new perspectives on the west coast city and in doing so sheds further light upon the relationship between the movies and the metropolis.
