

Immigration and Economic Growth

Growing the economy through immigration

75% of Canada's population growth comes from immigration, mostly in the economic category.

3-year plan sets most ambitious immigration levels in recent history

330,800 in 2019

341,000 in 2020

350,000 in 2021

This measured, gradual increase will trend towards 1% of the population by 2021, spurring innovation and representing a major investment in Canada's prosperity, now and into the future.

About 6 in 10 immigrants are selected for their positive economic impact.

1971

Fewer people working to support retirees

2035

In 1971, Canada's worker to retiree ratio was about 7 to 1.

By 2035, when 5 million Canadians are set to retire, the ratio will be down to 2 to 1.

The Economic Impact Of Immigration Report:

The Economic Impact of Immigration Great Britain. Parliament. House of Lords. Select Committee on Economic Affairs, 2008 Immigration has become highly significant to the UK economy immigrants comprise 12 per cent of the total workforce The Committee found no evidence for the argument made by the Government business and others that net immigration generates significant economic benefits for the existing UK population The Committee criticises use of GDP as a criterion for assessing the economic impacts of immigration on the UK The total size of an economy is not an index of prosperity The focus of analysis should be on the effects of immigration on income per head of the resident population and theory and the available empirical evidence indicate that these effects are small The economic impacts of immigration depend critically on the skills of immigrants The Committee does not support the general claims that net immigration is indispensable to fill labour and skills shortages and also questions the Government's claim that immigration has generated fiscal benefits Rising population density has potentially important economic consequences for the resident population including impacts on housing as well as wider welfare effects especially where immigrants are most concentrated Immigration does exert a significant impact on the housing market in particular areas Data on immigration and immigrants in the UK and those leaving the country are inadequate The Committee recommends the Government should improve radically the immigration statistics review immigration policies and explain the reasons and objectives better enforce the minimum wage clarify the objectives and implications of the new points based immigration system monitor immigration by publishing regular reports on the numbers and characteristics of immigrants further consider which channels of immigration should lead to settlement and citizenship review the implications of its projection of net immigration of 190 000 a year

The Economic Impact of Immigration Great Britain. Parliament. House of Lords. Select Committee on Economic Affairs, 2008 The Economic and Fiscal Consequences of Immigration National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Committee on National Statistics, Panel on the Economic and Fiscal Consequences of Immigration, 2017-07-13 The Economic and Fiscal Consequences of Immigration finds that the long term impact of immigration on the wages and employment of native born workers overall is very small and that any negative impacts are most likely to be found for prior immigrants or native born high school dropouts First generation immigrants are more costly to governments than are the native born but the second generation are among the strongest fiscal and economic contributors in the U S This report concludes that immigration has an overall positive impact on long run economic growth in the U S More than 40 million people living in the United States were born in other countries and almost an equal number have at least one foreign born parent Together the first generation foreign born and second generation children of the foreign born comprise almost one in four Americans It comes as little surprise then that many U S residents view immigration as a major policy issue facing the nation Not only does immigration affect the environment in which everyone lives learns and works but it also interacts with nearly every policy area of concern from jobs and the economy education and health care to federal state and local government budgets The changing patterns of immigration and the evolving consequences for American society institutions and the economy continue to fuel public policy debate that plays out at the national state and local levels The Economic and Fiscal Consequences of Immigration assesses the impact of dynamic immigration processes on economic and fiscal outcomes for the United States a major destination of world population movements This report will be a fundamental resource for policy makers and law makers at the federal state and local levels but extends to the general public nongovernmental organizations the business community educational institutions and the research community Economic Migration to the EU Great Britain: Parliament: House of Lords: European Union Committee, 2005-11-16 The European Commission published a Green Paper An EU approach to managing economic migration in January 2005 setting out proposals for a common EU policy for the admission of immigrants for employment and migrant workers rights In light of this consultation paper the Committee's report examines the issue of economic migration to the EU and the level at which it should be regulated and discusses whether Member States should retain the freedom to decide on issues of economic migration independently of each other The report is mostly concerned with migration into the EU but also looks at some aspects of intra EU movement it does not consider illegal immigration or asylum issues Issues discussed include wider economic issues the impact of globalisation EU enlargement options for control of migrant workers the UK's position on the Commission's Green Paper the case for a common EU policy and the rights of migrant workers
