The Essence of Christianity Ludwig Feuerbach, 1855

The Essence of Christianity Ludwig Feuerbach, 2024-05-09

The Essence of Christianity is widely regarded as one of the most important and influential critiques of religion in modern philosophy. In this work, Feuerbach argues that the traditional Christian understanding of God is a projection of human nature and that religion is a reflection of human ideals, desires, and aspirations. Schopenhauer and Nietzsche both take their satirical criticism about religion from Feuerbach, and every aspect of Marxism can be found here in Marx's favorite philosopher. Feuerbach is a critical figure in the development of not merely Marxism but Materialistic Humanism in general. Feuerbach explores the idea that God and religious beliefs are projections of human nature. He argues that God embodies aspects of human nature and that religion is a reflection of humanity's self-understanding. The book is divided into two parts: the first addresses the true or anthropological essence of religion, discussing how God corresponds to human nature, while the second part critiques the false or theological essence of religion, challenging traditional religious beliefs as harmful misconceptions. Feuerbach's projection theory reframes theology as a mirror of species-consciousness, wherein divine attributes (omnipotence, love) reflect idealized human capacities. Marx extends this logic to political economy, arguing capital becomes a similarly reified abstraction dominating its creators. The text's split structure (descriptive anthropology vs. critical theology) parallels Kant's distinction between noumenal and phenomenal realms, but Feuerbach collapses this duality into materialist monism. This rejection of transcendental idealism directly informs Nietzsche's proclamation of the death of God as a humanist awakening.

The Essence of Christianity Ludwig Feuerbach, Marian Evans, 2014-11-17

The Essence of Christianity By Ludwig Feuerbach: A Philosophy and Critique of Religion. Translated From The Second German Edition by Marian Evans. The Essence of Christianity (German: Das Wesen des Christentums) is a book by Ludwig Feuerbach, first published in 1841. It explains Feuerbach's philosophy and critique of religion. The book is often considered a classic of humanism, and the author's magnum opus. Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels were strongly influenced by the book, although they criticised Feuerbach for his inconsistent espousal of materialism. Feuerbach's theory of alienation would later be used by Marx in his theory of alienation. Max Stirner directed his The Ego and Its Own against it. Rather than simply a polemic, Stirner's work uses Feuerbach's idea of God as a human abstraction as the basis of his critique of Feuerbach. Feuerbach's theme was a derivation of Hegel's speculative theology, in which the Creation remains a part of the Creator while the Creator remains greater than the Creation. When the student Feuerbach presented his own theory to professor Hegel, Hegel refused to reply positively to it. In Part I of his book, Feuerbach developed what he calls the true or anthropological essence of religion: treating of God in his various aspects as a being of the understanding, as a moral being, or law as love, and so on. Feuerbach talks of how man is equally a conscious being, more so than God, because man has placed upon God the ability of understanding. Man contemplates many things, and in doing so, he becomes acquainted with himself. Feuerbach shows that in every aspect, God

corresponds to some feature or need of human nature If man is to find contentment in God he claims he must find himself in God Thus God is nothing else than man he is so to speak the outward projection of man s inward nature This projection is dubbed as a chimera by Feuerbach that God and the idea of a higher being is dependent upon the aspect of benevolence Feuerbach states that a God who is not benevolent not just not wise is no God and continues to say that qualities are not suddenly denoted as divine because of their godly association The qualities themselves are divine therefore making God divine indicating that man is capable of understanding and applying meanings of divinity to religion and not that religion makes a man divine

The Essence of Christianity Ludwig Feuerbach,2018-10-05 Religion is the disuniting of man from himself he sets God before him as the antithesis of himself God is not what man is man is not what God is God is the infinite man the finite being God is perfect man imperfect God eternal man temporal God almighty man weak God holy man sinful God and man are extremes God is the absolutely positive the sum of all realities man the absolutely negative comprehending all negations But in religion man contemplates his own latent nature Hence it must be shown that this antithesis this differencing of God and man with which religion begins is a differencing of man with his own nature The inherent necessity of this proof is at once apparent from this that if the divine nature which is the object of religion were really different from the nature of man a division a disunion could not take place If God is really a different being from myself why should his perfection trouble me Disunion exists only between beings who are at variance but who ought to be one who can be one and who consequently in nature in truth are one The Essence of Religion Ludwig Feuerbach,2024-05-09 The Essence of Religion is a philosophical work published in 1841 that critiques the nature and origins of religious belief arguing for a Darwinian historical origin for religion and a materialistic worldview In this work Feuerbach argues that religion is a product of human imagination and projection and that its true essence can only be understood by examining the human mind and its relationship to the natural world Stalin in his 1906 book Anarchism or Socialism discusses Feuerbach If the dialectical method originates from Hegel then the materialist theory is a development of the materialism of Feuerbach This is well known to anarchists and they try to use the shortcomings of Hegel and Feuerbach in order to denigrate the dialectical materialism of Marx and Engels With regard to Hegel and the dialectical method we have already pointed out that such tricks of the anarchists cannot prove anything other than their own ignorance The same must be said regarding their attacks on Feuerbach and materialist theory Feuerbach was heavily influential on Marx who modeled his entire religion on Feuerbach's de-mythologization of the Hegelian dialectic Schopenhauer and Nietzsche both took their satirical criticism about religion from Feuerbach and every aspect of Marxism can be found here in Marx's favorite Philosopher Feuerbach is a critical figure in the development of not merely Marxism but Materialistic Humanism in general Feuerbach is critical to understanding Marx Feuerbach's naturalistic reduction of religion parallels Durkheim's Elementary Forms yet prioritizes individual psychology over collective effervescence His focus on dependence as religion's root contrasts with Otto's mysterium tremendum prioritizing material need over numinous experience The text's proto-Darwinian narrative religion evolving alongside human mastery of nature anticipates cognitive science of religion's focus on hyperactive agency detection Feuerbach's emphasis on projection as adaptive mechanism aligns with Boyer's evolutionary anthropology Ecological theorists critique Feuerbach's anthropocentrism but commend his recognition of nature's agency His dialectic of human nature reciprocity informs contemporary posthumanist critiques of Cartesian mastery Feuerbach Marx W. Wartofsky, 1982-08-31 Feuerbach is now recognized as a central figure in the history of nineteenth century thought He was one of Hegel's most influential pupils he dominated German radical philosophy in the 1840s and was the leader of the Young Hegelians his anthropological critique of Hegel's idealism decisively influences the materialism and humanism of Marx and Engels his critique of religion pointed the way for the philosophers of religion and his psychological analyses found a place in Freudian thought and the existential and phenomenological traditions In this 1977 text Professor Wartofsky wishes to go beyond this conventional view to establish Feuerbach as much more than a transitional figure between Hegel and Marx or an influence on important later developments He seriously considers Feuerbach's philosophy on its own terms and seeks to demonstrate its continuing importance He therefore traces Feuerbach's development in detail emphasizing its dialectical character and finds fundamental originality in his epistemology Essence of Religion Ludwig Feuerbach, 2004-06 Originally published in 1845 this concise critique formed the basis of thirty later lectures delivered in 1848 by Ludwig Feuerbach one of Germany's most influential humanist philosophers In The Essence of Religion Feuerbach applied the analysis expounded in The Essence of Christianity 1841 to religion as a whole The main thrust of Feuerbach's argument is aptly summed up in the original subtitle to this work God the Image of Man Man's Dependence upon Nature the Last and Only Source of Religion Feuerbach reviews key aspects of religious belief and in each case explains them as imaginative elaborations of the primal awe and sense of dependence that humans experience in the face of nature's power and mystery. Rather than humans being created in the image of God, the situation is quite the reverse. All theology is anthropology, he says, and the being whom man sets over against himself as a separate supernatural existence is his own being. Feuerbach goes on to argue that the attributes of God are no more than reflections of the various needs of human nature. Further, as human civilization has advanced, the role of God has gradually diminished. In ancient times, before human beings had any scientific understanding of the way nature works, divine powers were seen behind every natural manifestation, from lightning bolts to the change of seasons. By contrast, in the modern era, when an in-depth understanding of natural causes has been achieved, there is no longer any need to imagine God behind the workings of nature. He who for his God has no other material than that which natural science, philosophy, or natural observation generally furnishes to him ought to be honest enough also to abstain from using the name of God for a natural principle. It is always a natural essence, and not what constitutes the idea of a God. Feuerbach's naturalistic philosophy had a decisive influence on Karl Marx and radical theologians such as Bruno Bauer and David Friedrich Strauss. His incisive critique remains a challenge to religion to this day.

Hegel After Derrida Stuart Barnett, 2002-01-04 Hegel After Derrida provides a much needed insight not only into the importance of Hegel and the importance of Derrida's work on Hegel but also the very foundations of postmodern and deconstructionist thought. It will be essential reading for all those engaging with the work of Derrida and Hegel today and anyone seeking insight into some of the basic but neglected themes of deconstruction.

Beyond the Doctrine of Man Joseph Drexler-Dreis, Kristien Justaert, 2019-12-03 Catalyzed by Sylvia Wynter's questioning of modern colonial descriptions of the human person, the essays in Beyond the Doctrine of Man interrogate the problem of these definitions of the human person and take up the struggle to decolonize and unsettle such descriptions. Contributors: Rufus Burnett Jr, M. Shawn Copeland, Yomaira C. Figueroa, Patrice Haynes, Xhercis M. Ndez, Andrew Prevot, Mayra Rivera, Linn Marie Tonstad, Alexander G. Weheliye.

Ethics-Politics-Subjectivity Simon Critchley, 2020-05-05 In Ethics Politics Subjectivity, Simon Critchley takes up three questions at the centre of contemporary theoretical debate: What is ethical experience? What can be said of the subject who has this experience? What, if any, is the relation of ethical experience to politics? Through spirited confrontations with major thinkers such as Lacan, Nancy, Rorty, and in particular Levinas and Derrida, Critchley finds answers in a nuanced ethics of finitude and defends the political possibilities of deconstruction. Democracy, economics, friendship, and technology are all considered anew in Critchley's bold excursions on the meaning and value of recent French philosophy.

A Theology for the Bildungsbürgertum Leif Svensson, 2020-04-06 This book provides a new approach to Albrecht Ritschl's theology. Leif Svensson argues that Ritschl's theological project must be related to three cultural developments: historical criticism, materialism and anti Lutheran polemics and understood in the context of the de Christianization of the Bildungsbürgertum in nineteenth century Germany Albrecht Ritschl remains the great unknown of nineteenth century theology In this important study Leif Svensson sheds new light on Ritschl's thought by relating it to contemporaneous social and cultural developments Rooted in deep familiarity with German intellectual life of the time the book convincingly illustrates the value of a history of theology that is mindful of its various contexts Johannes Zachhuber University of Oxford I confess I was hesitant to blurb a book on Ritschl but then I read it Svensson's well researched presentation of Ritschl's thought is compelling and forceful I highly recommend this book Stanley Hauerwas Duke Divinity School Svensson's work ably places Ritschl's contribution to theology in the broader context of the intellectual and cultural history of the nineteenth century Students of Protestant theology and thought and all interested in the complex relationship between Christian theology and modernity will learn something of value from this important study Thomas Albert Howard Valparaiso University

Denying and Disclosing God Michael J. Buckley, 2004-01-01 Reflecting on the development of atheism from the beginnings of modernity to the present day the author suggests that atheism originated in the denial that the various forms of interpersonal religious experience possess any cognitive cogency

Jewish Philosophical Politics in Germany, 1789-1848 Sven-Erik Rose, 2014-08-05 In this book Rose illuminates the extraordinary creativity of Jewish intellectuals as they reevaluated Judaism with the tools of a German philosophical tradition fast emerging as central to modern intellectual life While previous work emphasizes the subversive dimensions of German Jewish thought or the inner antisemitism of the German philosophical tradition Rose shows convincingly the tremendous resources German philosophy offered contemporary Jews for thinking about the place of Jews in the wider polity Offering a fundamental reevaluation of seminal figures and key texts Rose emphasizes the productive encounter between Jewish intellectuals and German philosophy He brings to light both the complexity and the ambivalence of reflecting on Jewish identity and politics from within a German tradition that invested tremendous faith in the political efficacy of philosophical thought itself

The Oxford History of Modern German Theology, Volume 1: 1781-1848 Grant Kaplan, Kevin M. Vander Schel, 2023 Oxford History of Modern German Theology Vol I 1781-1848 offers a multi author overview of the development of modern German theology from 1781 to 1848 Across 36 chapters Kaplan and Vander Schel underline important movements in German theology during this period and highlight unresolved questions which have shaped subsequent discussion

Against War Nelson Maldonado-Torres, 2008-04-09 An analysis of Western attitudes toward war from a subaltern perspective that brings new insights into Western philosophical paradigms

From Pauperism to Poverty Karel Williams, 2016-10-04 First published in 1981 From Pauperism to Poverty consists of seven essays three of which focus on the English poor law between 1800 and 1914 and four of which examine texts of social investigation by Mayhew Engels Booth and Rowntree Rather than making a specialist contribution to the history of social thought and policy the essays raise general questions about current ways of writing history and alternative analyses of specific texts or institutions are developed In doing so the previous histories of the relief of pauperism and the discovery of poverty are revised at many points Most notably it is demonstrated for the first time that relief to unemployed men was virtually abolished after 1850 This book will be of interest to those studying the history of social welfare and poverty A Failed Parricide Roberto Finelli, 2015-11-24 According to an established interpretation the transition from Hegel's materialism to Marx's materialism signifies a progressive development from an abstract idealist theory of becoming to a theory of the concrete actions of human beings within history A Failed Parricide by Roberto Finelli offers an innovative reading of the Marx Hegel relationship arguing that the young Marx remained structurally subaltern to Hegel's distinctive conception of the subject that becomes itself in relation to alterity Marx's early critique of Hegel is represented as a failed parricide relying upon an organicist and spiritualist anthropology derived from Feuerbach's presumed materialism Only in Marx's mature critique of political economy will he be able to return to this primal scene and produce a distinctive theory of the role of formal determinations in social and political modernity First published in Italian by Bollati Boringhieri Editore as Un parricidio mancato Il rapporto tra Hegel e il giovane Marx Turin 2004
