Representing Ebola Marouf A. Hasian Jr., 2016-07-14 Representing Ebola provides readers with a critical legal analysis of the recent West African Ebola Outbreak The author argues that a review of the scientific military legal economic political and mediated coverage of this latest outbreak highlights the ways that organizations like the World Health Organization or Doctors Without Borders want to conceptualize the importance of rapid emergence from the West during African Ebola epidemics The author concludes that while the U S military and other organizations prided themselves on their belated responses to this outbreak oftentimes journalists scientists and others overlooked the contributions that were made by contract tracers and indigenous public health workers Sadly the 2013 2015 West African outbreak took the lives of thousands of individuals and the author contends that this contributed to sensationalist ways of representing local burial and food habits The book concludes by noting that while many West African leaders appreciated the billions of dollars of promised aid that would flow toward this region in the wake of the Ebola outbreak real health security measures have to involve longer term infrastructural changes Talk of how Westerners rescued the West Africans need to be augmented with more nuanced ways of thinking about how many of those who actually battled Ebola need to become part of future conversations regarding everything from theories of aerial transmission to the steps that need to be taken during the first few weeks of recorded outbreaks

The Hell of it All Charlie Brooker, 2009-10-22 Brooker on the BNP Party Political Broadcast. Nick Griffin's first line is "Don't turn it off," which, in terms of opening gambits, is about as enticing as hearing someone shout "Try not to be sick immediately prior to intercourse." Brooker on Philip from The Apprentice: If it were legal or even possible to do so, he'd probably marry himself, then conduct a long-term affair with himself behind his back, eventually fathering nine children with himself, all of whom would walk and talk like him. And then he'd lock those mini-hims in a secret underground dungeon to have his sick way with his selves undetected for decades.

Brooker on Royal Ascot: Every year it's the same thing: a 200-year-old countess you've never heard of who closely resembles a Cruella De Vil mannequin, assembled entirely from heavily wrinkled scrotal tissue that's been soaked in tea for the past eight decades, attempts to draw attention away from her sagging neck, a droopy curtain of skin that hangs so low she has to repeatedly kick it out of her path as she crosses the royal compound by balancing the millinery equivalent of Bilbao's Guggenheim museum on her head.
