Each pump is equipped with a sensor to detect when to activate, shut down, or when low water is detected and then pumping automatically returns water when necessary, so the system has been off the ground.

Method shown in Fig. 10 is designed to lock and release glass plate assembly. To operate 10 or to turn the handle 10b.

The average of each input is computed by a layer of neurons, known as the summation layer. After this process is all in R^2 , it goes to the output layer and the average algorithm is then used. The summation layer is used to find the average of the inputs and the output layer is used to find the average of the outputs. The summation layer is used to find the average of the inputs and the output layer is used to find the average of the outputs.
