British Spy Fiction and the End of Empire Sam Goodman, 2015-06-05 The position of spy fiction is largely synonymous in popular culture with ideas of patriotism and national security with the spy himself indicative of the defence of British interests and the preservation of British power around the globe This book reveals a more complicated side to these assumptions than typically perceived arguing that the representation of space and power within spy fiction is more complex than commonly assumed Instead of the British spy tirelessly maintaining the integrity of Empire this volume illustrates how spy fiction contains disunities and disjunctions in its representation of space and the relationship between the individual and the state in an era of declining British power Focusing primarily on the work of Graham Greene Ian Fleming Len Deighton and John le Carre the volume brings a fresh methodological approach to the study of spy fiction and Cold War culture It presents close textual analysis within a framework of spatial and sovereign theory as a means of examining the cultural impact of decolonization and the shifting geopolitics of the Cold War Adopting a thematic approach to the analysis of space in spy fiction the text explores the reciprocal process by which contextual history intersects with literature throughout the period in question arguing that spy fiction is responsible for reflecting strengthening and in some cases precipitating cultural anxieties over decolonization and the end of Empire This study promises to be a welcome addition to the developing field of spy fiction criticism and popular culture studies Both engaging and original in its approach it will be important reading for students and academics engaged in the study of Cold War culture popular literature and the changing state of British identity over the course of the latter twentieth century

Our Own Devices Edward Tenner, 2009-08-26 This delightful and instructive history of invention shows why National Public Radio dubbed Tenner the philosopher of everyday technology Looking at how our inventions have impacted our world in ways we never intended or imagined he shows that the things we create have a tendency to bounce back and change us The reclining chair originally designed for brief healthful relaxation has become the very symbol of obesity The helmet invented for military purposes has made possible new sports like mountain biking and rollerblading The typewriter created to make business run more smoothly has resulted in wide spread vision problems which in turn have made people more reliant on another invention eyeglasses As he sheds light on the many ways inventions surprise and renew us Tenner considers where technology will take us in the future and what we can expect from the devices that we no longer seem able to live without

Tales of Two Cities: Settlement and Suburb in Old Sarum and Salisbury Hadrian Cook,Alex Langlands,2024-07-04 Telling the story of Old Sarum and Salisbury from the mid 10th century to the start of the 20th this book brings together the most up to date thinking on the archaeological evidence and through analysis of the rich documentary record provides a fresh take on the story of this most illustrious cathedral city in the heart of southern England The Transformation of Urban

Liberalism James Moore,2017-11-30 The Transformation of Urban Liberalism re evaluates the dramatic and turbulent political decade following the Third Reform Act and questions whether the Liberal Party s political heartlands the urban boroughs really were in decline In contrast to some recent studies it does not see electoral reform the Irish Home Rule crisis and the challenge of socialism as representing a fundamental threat to the integrity of the party Instead this book illustrates using parallel case studies how the party gradually began to transform into a social democratic organisation through a re evaluation of its role and policy direction This process was not one directed from the centre despite the important personalities of Gladstone and Rosebery but rather one heavily influenced by grass roots politics Consequently it suggests that late Victorian politics was more democratic and open than sometimes thought with leading urban politicians forced to respond to the demands of party activists Changes in the structure of urban rule produced new policy outcomes and brought new collectivist forms of New Liberalism onto the political agenda Thus it is argued that without the political transformations of the decade 1885 1895 the radical liberal governments of the Edwardian era would not have been possible Hanif

Family and Class in a London Suburb Peter Willmott,Michael Young,2023-08-09 Originally published in 1960 the authors of Family and Kinship in East London then made an intensive study of a middle class dormitory suburb Here families were more often on their own than in the East End but despite the differences between the districts there were some similarities The bond between mother and married daughter was almost as strong in the suburb as in the city Most old people too were cared for in both places by their children and other relatives though the authors show how serious were the special problems of the aged in this suburban setting The enquiry examined the influence of social class upon community life

This is reviewed in relation to club and church membership and to friendship patterns and the behaviour of middle and working class people to each other is discussed Class tensions and their effect on the otherwise friendly and neighbourly atmosphere that the authors found in the suburb provide the main theme of the final chapters
