as a screenwriter at the twilight of the old studio system She spent much of her adult life deeply embroiled in the glitz and glamor of the Los Angeles elite where she acutely observed and denounced how the nation's fears and dreams were sensationalized on screen Meanwhile she paid the bills writing movie scripts like A Star Is Born while her books propelled her to celestial heights of fame Peering through a scrim of celluloid Wilkinson incisively dissects the cinematic motifs and machinations that informed Didion's writing and how her writing ultimately demonstrated Hollywood's addictive grasp on the American imagination More than a portrait of a writer We Tell Ourselves Stories shines a new light on a legacy whose impact will be felt for generations

Rajmohan's Wife: A Novel Bankim Chandra Chattopadhyay, 2020-09-28 THERE is a small village on the river Madhumati On account of its being the residence of wealthy zemindars it is regarded as a village of importance One Chaitra afternoon the summer heat was gradually abating with the weakening of the once keen rays of the sun a gentle breeze was blowing it began to dry the perspiring brow of the peasant in the field and play with the moist locks of village women just risen from their siesta It was after such a siesta that a woman of about thirty was engaged in her toilet in a humble thatched cottage She took very little time to finish the process usually so elaborate with womankind a dish of water a tin framed looking glass three inches wide and a comb matching it sufficed for the task Then a little vermilion adorned her forehead Last of all some betel leaves dyed her lips Thus armed a formidable champion of the world conquering sex set out with a pitcher in her arm and pushing open the wattled gate of a neighbouring house entered within it There were four huts in the house which she entered They had mud floors and bamboo walls There was no sign of poverty anywhere everything was neat and tidy The four huts stood on the four sides of a quadrangle Of these three had entrances opening on the yard the fourth opened outwards This last was the reception room while the others screened on all sides constituted the zenana Some brinjals and salads were growing on the carefully tilled plot of land in front of the raised terrace before the outer room The whole was enclosed by a reed fence with a bamboo gate So the woman could easily make her way into the house It is superfluous to add that she went straight towards the zenana I know not where the other inmates of the house had gone after their siesta but at that time there were only two persons there one a young woman of eighteen bent over her embroidery and a child of four immersed in play His elder brother had wilfully left his ink pot behind when going to school The child's eyes had fallen on it and he was joyfully smearing his face with the ink He seemed to be afraid of his brother coming back and snatching the ink pot away and so he was emptying the pot The newcomer sat down on the floor by the side of her who was working and asked What are you doing

Huang, 2001 In this study of desire in Late Imperial China Martin W Huang argues that the development of traditional Chinese fiction as a narrative genre was closely related to changes in conceptions of the fundamental nature of desire He further suggests that the rise of vernacular fiction during the late Ming dynasty should be studied in the context of contemporary debates on desire along with the new and complex views that emerged from those debates Desire and Fictional Narrative in Late Imperial China shows that the obsession of authors with individual desire is an essential quality that defines traditional Chinese fiction as a narrative genre Thus the maturation of the genre can best be appreciated in terms of its increasingly sophisticated exploration of the phenomenon of desire Humor in Young Adult Literature Walter Hogan, 2005-01-20 Celebrates the accomplishments of YA authors acclaimed for producing high quality comedies who have not yet been treated in a book length bio critical study Simultaneously it reminds readers that no matter how funny an author of fiction may be if he shows off his wit in ways that fail to play a natural role in advancing his narrative he is not writing good fiction To demonstrate this humorous passages are presented to illustrate the contribution a sense of humor can make to a work of fiction The book is arranged topically to facilitate a comparison of distinctive treatments by various authors of adolescent life events such as sibling rivalry bullies and first dates The Atlas of Untold Stories Sara Brunsvold, 2025-06-17 A literary journey beckons them and may profoundly rewrite their stories Chloe Vance dreamer of the family needs to tell her pragmatic mom Edie that she has accepted a low paying art instructor role at a Christian school in Prague Her older sister Lauren the responsible one is doing all she can to hide the fact she s been fired for a foolish mistake and is desperately seeking her next career move Meanwhile Edie estranged from her own sister following their mother s recent death is frankly in no mood for anything else to change The one thing they can all agree on Life in books sure is easier to navigate than life in the real world As the three women embark on a nine day road trip to visit significant literary sites throughout America s heartland they hope to find inspiration through the works and lives of literary greats As they experience firsthand the adventure and wonder of the classics they ll discover the value of being honest with themselves and their family about their losses and failures Only then can they come to terms with their own needs and
