Chapter 2

In-Chapter Questions

2.1. (p. 17) Remember that the slope of the line is the coefficient of x . When that coefficient is positive, there is a direct relationship between x and y . The second equation says that there is an inverse relationship between x and y : When x increases in value, y decreases in value.

2.2. (p. 19) Think about transitivity over time. Is it necessarily true that a hot dog at lunch is the same good as a hot dog at dinner on the same day? Why would this not be the case? It surely is not the case that our tastes do not depend on what has happened in the recent past (even in the distant past) and the context in which we find ourselves.

2.3. (p. 20) As you reduce x from x_0 to x_1 , notice that if the amount of y remains constant at y_0 , then the consumer will be on a lower indifference curve, U_2 . To return the consumer to the higher level of well-being represented by U_1 , the amount of y in bundle must increase. How much? Draw a vertical line upward from the intersection of y_0 with U_2 until you reach indifference curve U_1 . Then, draw a horizontal line from that intersection point over to the y -axis. That will give you the amount of additional y that must be given the consumer to make up for the loss of x .

2.4. (p. 21) Increases and decreases in income will shift the curve, while a change in the price will cause the line to rotate.

2.5 (pp. 22-23) Compare the marginal costs with the marginal benefits. If the initial level is greater than the optimum, then marginal costs are higher than marginal benefits. That is, the cost of the final unit exceeds the benefit received from it. The decision-maker will continue to decrease the amount being maximized until marginal benefit equals marginal cost.

2.6. (p. 24) Another way to ask this question is, "At what point does society stop receiving benefits from additional units of pollution reduction?"

2.7. (p. 24) Refer to your answer to question 2.6. In Figure 2.7, show the area that constitutes the net benefits. That's the triangular area above the MC curve and below the MB curve.

The technological change that lowers the MC of achieving any given level of pollution will lower the MC curve – that is, it will rotate downward. Therefore, its intersection with the MB curve will be further to the right. So, the socially optimal amount of pollution will be less than what it was before the technological innovation.

Implementing Cross-Culture Pedagogies Pham Thi Hong Thanh, 2013-11-27 During the last two decades Confucian heritage culture countries have widely promoted teaching and learning reforms to advance their educational systems To skip the painfully long research stage Confucian heritage culture educators have borrowed Western philosophies and practices with the assumption that what has been done successfully in the West will produce similar outcomes in the East The wide importation of cooperative learning practices to Confucian heritage culture classrooms recently is an example However cooperative learning has been documented in many studies not to work effectively in Confucian heritage culture classrooms The reason is that the educators often impose this instructional method on the students without a careful consideration of its appropriateness in the socio cultural context of Confucian heritage culture countries This procedure is not effective and professional because learning does not stand alone Rather it is shaped and influenced by other factors including teaching methods learning tasks assessment demands workload and the learning culture of students in the local context For cooperative learning to work effectively in Confucian heritage culture classrooms reformers need to consider the importation of this approach in line with a careful examination of all supports and constraints that affect those factors that are associated with learning The volume provides an applied theoretical framework and culturally appropriate and practical instructions that could assist Confucian heritage culture educators and teachers to address various factors at multiple levels in order to optimize success in importing cooperative learning to their classrooms Overall it provides strategies to assist Confucian heritage culture teachers to change their teaching practices redesign lessons plans design assessment methods and organize learning activities in a manner that can influence Confucian heritage culture students to shift from employing teacher centered learning approaches to cooperative learning
