The emergence of American English as a discursive variety Ingrid Paulsen, 2022 Do speakers identity constructions influence the emergence of new varieties of a language This question is at the heart of a debate about how the process of the emergence of postcolonial varieties of English can best be modeled This volume contributes to the debate by linking it to models and theories proposed by anthropological linguists sociolinguists and discourse linguists who view identity as a social and cultural phenomenon that is produced through linguistic and other social practices Language is seen as essential for identity constructions because speakers use linguistic forms that index social personae as well as specific social practices and values to convey an image of self to other speakers Based on the theory of enregisterment that models the cultural and discursive process of the creation of indexical links between linguistic forms and social values the argument is made that any model of the emergence of new varieties needs to differentiate carefully between a structural level and a discursive level What emerges on the discursive level as a result of processes of enregisterment is a discursive variety The volume illustrates how the emergence of a discursive variety can be systematically studied in a historical context by focusing on the enregisterment of American English as it can be observed in nineteenth century U S newspapers Using a discourse linguistic methodological framework and two large databases containing close to 78 million newspaper articles the study reveals a complex pattern of indexical links between the phonological forms h dropping and insertion yod dropping a lengthened and backened bath vowel non rhoticity a realization of prevocalic r as a labiodental approximant as well as the lexical items baggage and pants on the one hand and social values centering around nationality authenticity and non specificity on the other hand Qualitative analyses uncover the social personae associated with the linguistic forms e g the American cowboy the African American mammy and the Anglo maniac American dude while quantitative analyses trace the development over time and show that the enregisterment processes were widespread and not restricted to a particular region

English as a Foreign Language in a New-Found Post-Pandemic World El-Henawy, Walaa M., del Mar Suárez, Maria, 2022-06-24. The COVID-19 pandemic has catalyzed a new era in English as a Foreign Language (EFL) learning and teaching by shifting EFL education from the face-to-face learning paradigm to the online and distance learning paradigm. Teachers and students have faced several challenges such as choosing appropriate web tools for presenting content either synchronously or asynchronously, motivating students to participate, and assessing students' learning. Additionally, this shift to emergency remote online learning represents a challenge for students, particularly with managing their own learning. Taking into account that many students attend low-income schools with limited resources that lack reliable access to the internet and computers, this shift has resulted in growing equity gaps. Likewise, transitioning to emergency remote teaching has revealed a lack of digital competency and readiness amongst teachers. English as a Foreign Language in a New Found Post-Pandemic World presents an overview of various tools, designs, and strategies utilized to provide digital teaching and assessment of the English language, shares research on using digital technologies for supporting English language learning, and identifies promising areas and directions for future innovations, applications, and research in digital English language learning and teaching. Covering critical topics such as digital teacher education, language learning environments, and online instructional tools, this reference work is crucial for administrators, policymakers, teacher educators, special educators, educational technologists, researchers, scholars, academicians, practitioners, instructors, and students.
