Teachers, Ideology and Control Gerald Grace,Professor Gerald Grace,2012 Teachers of the urban working class especially in inner city areas have always been regarded as strategic agents in processes of social and cultural formation In the Victorian era seen as The Teachers of the People Pioneers of Civilization and Preachers of Culture their role in gentling and controlling the urban masses was crucial They have always been at the centre of confrontation and struggle in a classroom sense in a cultural sense and in a socio political sense In contemporary inner city schools such confrontation and struggle remain a reality Teachers Ideology and Control is one of the first attempts to examine this important social and occupational group by locating contemporary sociological research in an historical framework As such it will be of interest not only to students of sociology and education especially urban education but also to social historians Its relevance to those who either administer or teach in urban schools will be clear The author shows the ways in which contemporary inner city schools are caught up in an ideological struggle in education He explore the nature of constraint and control in urban education with reference to existing constructs of the good teacher the demands of the teacher s work situation and the reality of autonomy He suggests that viewed historically the relative autonomy of teachers has increased as a result largely of socio political and institutional crises At the same time however there have been important changes in the modality of social control changes from more explicit to more implicit features What it is to be a good teacher the effects of day to day immersion in school life and the ideology of professionalism these are all seen to be important constituents of a network of implicit control in contemporary education

Educator Stress Teresa Mendonça McIntyre,Scott E.

McIntyre, David J. Francis, 2017-08-28 This book brings together the most current thinking and research on educator stress and how education systems can support quality teachers and quality education. It adopts an occupational health perspective to examine the problem of educator stress and presents theory-driven intervention strategies to reduce stress load and support educator resilience and healthy school organizations. The book provides an international perspective on key challenges facing educators such as teacher stress, teacher retention, training effective teachers, teacher accountability, cyber bullying in schools, and developing healthy school systems. Divided into four parts, the book starts out by introducing and defining the problem of educator stress internationally and examining educator stress in the context of school education system and education policy factors. Part I includes chapters on educator mental health and well-being, stress-related biological vulnerabilities, the relation of stress to teaching self-efficacy, turnover in charter schools, and the role of culture in educator stress. Part II reviews the main conceptual models that explain educator stress while applying an occupational health framework to education contexts, which stresses the role of organizational factors including work organization and work practices. It ends with a proposal of a dynamic integrative theory of educator stress which highlights the changing nature of educator stress with time and context. Part III starts with the definition of what constitute healthy school organizations as a backdrop to the following chapters which review the application of occupational health psychology theories and intervention approaches to reducing educator stress, promoting teacher resources, and developing healthy school systems. Chapters include interventions at the individual, individual-organizational interface, and organizational levels. Part III ends with a chapter addressing cyber bullying, a new challenge affecting schools and teachers. Part IV discusses the implications for research, practice, and policy in education, including teacher training and development. In addition, it presents a review of methodological issues facing researchers on educator stress and identifies future trends for research on this topic, including the use of ecological momentary assessment in educator stress research. The editors' concluding comments reflect upon the application of an occupational health perspective to advance research, practice, and policy directed at reducing stress in educators and promoting teacher and school well-being.
