

Uniform Crime Reporting (UCR) Program

The UCR Program's primary objective is to generate reliable information for use in law enforcement administration, operation, and management; over the years, however, the data have become one of the country's leading social indicators. The program has been the starting place for law enforcement executives, students of criminal justice, researchers, members of the media, and the public at large seeking information on crime in the nation. The program was conceived in 1929 by the International Association of Chiefs of Police to meet the need for reliable uniform crime statistics for the nation. In 1930, the FBI was tasked with collecting, publishing, and archiving those statistics.

Today, four annual publications are produced from data received from more than 18,000 city, university and college, county, state, tribal, and federal law enforcement agencies voluntarily participating in the program. The crime data are submitted either through a state UCR program or directly to the FBI's UCR Program.

Richer Data. Reliable Results

Detailed, incident-based data is what the National Incident-Based Reporting System brings to the UCR table as it is set to become the UCR data standard by January 1, 2021. The NIBRS-only data collection will provide more detailed, richer data on more offenses than is currently available through summary data.

The UCR Program consists of four data collections: The National Incident-Based Reporting System (NIBRS), the Summary Reporting System (SRS), the Law Enforcement Officers Killed and Assaulted (LEOKA) Program, and the Hate Crime Statistics Program. The UCR Program publishes annual reports for each of these data collections and a preliminary semiannual report of summary data each winter, as well as special compilations such as Gun Theft Report, Human Trafficking, and NIBRS trend studies. In addition to the four major data collections, the UCR Program will manage the new

The Ucr Uniform Crime Report:

Uniform Crime Reports for the United States United States. Federal Bureau of Investigation,2008 Understanding Crime Incidence Statistics Albert D. Biderman,James P. Lynch,2012-12-06 The prominence achieved by the novel measure of households touched by crime when it was introduced into the National Crime Survey NCS in 1981 was responsible for renewed attention to comparisons between the crime rates reported by the NCS and the Uniform Crime Reports UCR The new NCS measure suggested that crime was declining this at a time of widespread awareness that the UCR Index was at all time highs Comparisons of the NCS and UCR in The New York Times 1981 and the Washington Post 1981 had the unfortunate consequence of reviving old and usually ill informed arguments about which is the better measure of trends in crime More recent discrepant changes of the two measures in 1986 and 1987 rekindled the debate although with somewhat diminished stridency The efforts of criminological statisticians to develop an appreciation for the two statistical systems as quite different but complementary measures have suffered a setback in these debates but an opportunity is also afforded to improve the understanding of crime statistics by officials the media and the public The need remains for the Bureau of Justice Statistics BJS the Federal Bureau of Investigation FBI and the research community to explain in quantitative terms the ways in which the two systems attend to different albeit overlapping aspects of the crime problem Uniform Crime Reports
