The industries of the world, a course of technical education, ed. by J. Wylde James Wylde, 1881 Exploring Chemistry (Loose-Leaf) Matthew Johll, 2012-05-04 Matthew Johll's Exploring Chemistry covers the standard topics for the nonmajors course in the typical order but each chapter unfolds in the context of a single case study that helps students connect what they are learning to real life situations. For example, students work through the often difficult topics of molecular structure, gas laws, and organic chemistry by learning about the development of powerful new chemotherapy drugs, new technologies for screening airline passengers, and the creation of biodegradable biopolymers. It's the same case-driven approach that Johll uses in his acclaimed Investigating Chemistry now in its Third Edition, but Exploring Chemistry goes beyond the other book's specific focus on examples from forensic science to use real life stories from cooking, athletics, genetics, green chemistry, and more.

Exploration and Meaning Making in the Learning of Science Bernard Zubrowski, 2009-08-14 Mountaineers Rock Climbers and Science Educators Around the 1920s rock climbing separated from mountaineering to become a separate sport At that time European climbers developed new equipment and techniques enabling them to ascend mountain faces and to climb rocks which were considered unassailable up to that time American climbers went further by expanding and improving on the equipment They even developed a system of quantification where points were given for the degree of difficulty of an ascent This system focused primarily on the pitch of the mountain and it even calculated up to decimals to give a high degree of quantification Rock climbing became a technical system Csikszentmihalyi 1976 observed that the sole interest of rock climbers at that time was to climb the rock Rock climbers were known to reach the top and not even glance around at the scenery The focus was on reaching the top of the rock In contrast mountaineers saw the whole mountain as a single unit of perception The ascent to them is a gestalt including the aesthetic historical personal and physical sensations Csikszentmihalyi 1976 p 486 This is an example of two contrasting approaches to the same kind of landscape and of two different groups of people Interestingly in the US Europe and Japan a large segment of the early rock climbers were young mathematicians and theoretical physicists while the mountaineers were a more varied lot
