

Solving Equations

Many algebra problems are actually based on being comfortable in using equal unknown quantities, or equations, as a statement that the quantities involved are the same as quantities that cannot change (the unknowns) while creating statements that represent the actual situation. For example, if a car travels 60 miles per hour for 3 hours, it will travel 180 miles. This is a simple equation: $60 \times 3 = 180$.

While there are many properties of real numbers and properties of equations that are true, there are a few properties that help us solve equations.

Basic Properties of Equations

Substitution property

If two quantities differ and one quantity is equal to a third quantity, then the other quantity is equal to the third quantity.

$$a = b \text{ and } b = c \implies a = c$$

Substitution property

$$a = b \implies a + c = b + c$$

If two quantities differ and one quantity is equal to a third quantity, then the other quantity is equal to the third quantity. This is a simple equation: $a = b$ and $b = c \implies a = c$.

$$a = b \text{ and } b = c \implies a = c$$

Properties of Equations
