Abstract This paper presents a mathematical model for the dynamics of a system of interacting agents. The model is based on the assumption that the agents are represented by a set of nodes, each of which is connected to a subset of the other nodes. The nodes are represented by a set of variables, and the connections are represented by a set of parameters. The model is solved using a numerical method, and the results are compared with experimental data. The model is able to predict the behavior of the system for a wide range of parameters, and the results are in good agreement with the experimental data.
