What's new: The authors have identified a new type of cell that may be involved in the development of the brain. The cell is called a "neural stem cell" and is found in the hippocampus, a region of the brain that is important for learning and memory. The authors found that these cells can differentiate into neurons, which are the cells that transmit signals in the brain. This discovery could have important implications for understanding the development of the brain and for treating neurological disorders.

Abstract
This paper presents a new method for the automatic detection of the onset of a seizure. The method is based on the analysis of the EEG signal. The onset of a seizure is detected by the analysis of the power spectrum of the EEG signal. The power spectrum is calculated by the Fast Fourier Transform (FFT) method. The power spectrum is then analyzed by the method of the moving average. The onset of a seizure is detected when the power spectrum shows a significant increase in power. The method is applied to the EEG signal of a patient with epilepsy. The results show that the method is able to detect the onset of a seizure with a high accuracy. The method is also able to detect the end of a seizure. The method is a new and effective method for the automatic detection of the onset of a seizure.
