Interfaces to Database Systems (IDS94) Peter H. Sawyer, 2013-11-11 A brief survey of the major DBMS and HeI conference proceedings over the past 10 years will reveal isolated pockets of research in database user interfaces but little sense of being swept along with the general advances in DBMS technology and HeI New data models have evolved to meet the needs of different application domains persistent programming languages are blurring the traditional distinction between data definition and application programming languages distribution and inter operability have become issues as have the storage of heterogeneous media types yet it is still rare to read of the HeI issues raised by these technological innovations being expressly addressed and rarer still to find recognition of the usability problems with longer established database technologies There are at least two reasons why this should be surprising Database systems are not like other computer systems existing both as back ends to other applications and as stand alone data stores they are typically slow deal with very large volumes of data and can involve all sorts of security confidentiality and even cooperability issues Databases are everywhere Perhaps only word processors and spread sheets are more widespread In addition as business cultures change and personal computing continues to mould expectations end users find themselves interacting increasingly closely with database systems

Visualization for Computer Security John R. Goodall, Gregory Conti, Kwan-Liu Ma, 2008-08-26 This book constitutes the refereed proceedings of the 5th International Workshop on Visualization for Cyber Security held on September 15 2008 in Cambridge Massachusetts USA in conjunction with the 11th International Symposium on Recent Advances in Intrusion Detection RAID The 18 papers presented in this volume were carefully reviewed and selected from 27 submissions VizSec research has focused on helping human analysts to detect anomalies and patterns particularly in computer network defense This year s paper focus on bridging the gap between visualization and automation

Visual Database Systems 3 Stefano Spaccapietra, Ramesh Jain, 1995-09-30 Both the way we look at data through a DBMS and the nature of data we ask a DBMS to manage have drastically evolved over the last decade moving from text to images and to sound to a lesser extent Visual representations are used extensively within new user interfaces Powerful visual approaches are being experimented for data manipulation including the investigation of three dimensional display techniques Similarly sophisticated data visualization techniques are dramatically improving the understanding of the information extracted from a database On the other hand more and more applications use images as basic data or to enhance the quality and richness of data manipulation services Image management has opened a wide area of new research topics in image understanding and analysis The IFIP 2 6 Working Group on Databases strongly believes that a significant mutual enrichment is possible by confronting ideas concepts and techniques supporting the work of researcher and practitioners in the two areas of visual interfaces to DBMS and DBMS

management of visual data For this reason IFIP 2 6 has launched a series of conferences on Visual Database Systems The first one has been held in Tokyo 1989 VDB 2 was held in Budapest 1991 This conference is the third in the series As the preceding editions the conference addresses researchers and practitioners active or interested in user interfaces human computer communication knowledge representation and management image processing and understanding multimedia database techniques and computer vision Visualization in the Age of Computerization Annamaria Carusi,Aud Sissel Hoel,Timothy Webmoor,Steve Woolgar,2014-08-21 Digitalization and computerization are now pervasive in science This has deep consequences for our understanding of scientific knowledge and of the scientific process and challenges longstanding assumptions and traditional frameworks of thinking of scientific knowledge Digital media and computational processes challenge our conception of the way in which perception and cognition work in science of the objectivity of science and the nature of scientific objects They bring about new relationships between science art and other visual media and new ways of practicing science and organizing scientific work especially as new visual media are being adopted by science studies scholars in their own practice This volume reflects on how scientists use images in the computerization age and how digital technologies are affecting the study of science Computing Information Directory Darlene Myers Hildebrandt,1994
