QUESTION
A 60-year-old male with a 10-year history of type 2 diabetes mellitus presents to the clinic with a 2-week history of increasing fatigue, weight loss, and decreased appetite. He reports that he has been unable to tolerate his usual diet and has lost approximately 10 pounds (4.5 kg) over the past few months. He has no history of alcohol consumption and is currently on insulin therapy. His medical history is significant for hypertension and hyperlipidemia. He is a smoker with a 20-pack-year history. Physical examination reveals a thin, elderly man with no acute abnormalities. Laboratory studies show a hemoglobin A1c of 10.5%, serum albumin of 3.5 g/dL, and serum creatinine of 1.2 mg/dL. What is the most likely cause of his symptoms?

ANSWER: A
A. Chronic pancreatitis
B. Celiac disease
C. Crohn's disease
D. Gallbladder disease
E. Gastric cancer

EXPLANATION:
The patient's symptoms of weight loss, fatigue, and decreased appetite, along with the laboratory findings of a significantly elevated hemoglobin A1c and low serum albumin, are highly suggestive of chronic pancreatitis. Chronic pancreatitis is a progressive inflammatory condition of the pancreas that can lead to exocrine and endocrine dysfunction. Exocrine dysfunction can result in malabsorption of nutrients, leading to weight loss and fatigue. Endocrine dysfunction can lead to hyperglycemia, as evidenced by the elevated hemoglobin A1c. The low serum albumin level is also consistent with malabsorption. The patient's history of type 2 diabetes mellitus and the physical examination findings are not specific for chronic pancreatitis. Celiac disease, Crohn's disease, gallbladder disease, and gastric cancer are less likely causes of the patient's symptoms.

Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week, 1000 kcal energy deficit diet on the body composition and physical performance of 10 male triathletes. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and a diet group. The diet group was instructed to consume a diet that was 1000 kcal below their maintenance level. The control group was instructed to consume a diet that was at their maintenance level. The subjects were monitored for changes in body composition and physical performance over the 10-week period. The diet group showed a significant decrease in body weight and body fat percentage, while the control group showed no significant changes. The diet group also showed a significant increase in endurance performance, while the control group showed no significant changes. The results of this study suggest that a 10-week, 1000 kcal energy deficit diet can improve body composition and physical performance in male triathletes.
