Andrea Duffy,2025-09-15 The Nature of Empire exposes the central role of modern imperialism in the development of contemporary environmentalism and environmental science It builds this case through an investigation of five major modern empires Britain France Russia the Ottoman Empire and Japan This book offers readers a global environmental history of modern imperialism that actively engages Western based and non Western based empires As this study shows imperialism ultimately transformed human perceptions of nature and the environment in significant lasting and conflicting ways It both inspired modern conservationist practices and fueled opposition to environmental policies in colonial contexts It also spurred the development of climate science which helped reveal the environmental toll of imperial exploitation and drive efforts to fight it The environmental and political legacies of empire remain evident today through unmitigated anthropogenic climate change and the increasing incidence of extreme weather which tends to disproportionately impact marginalized peoples This book stands as a useful and accessible resource for students scholars and all those seeking to better understand environmental history imperial legacies and the roots of contemporary climate challenges A Cultural History of Climate

Israel's Past Bob

Becking, 2021-10-04 How should one write a history of Ancient Israel In the last few decades a lively discussion has taken place on the historiography of ancient Israel Minimalists such as Philip Davies Thomas Thompson and Niels Peter Lemche challenged the usefulness of the Hebrew Bible as a source for constructing Israel s past Maximalists like Baruch Halpern and William Dever argued instead that the data from the Hebrew Bible should be trusted until otherwise proven Others among whom we can name Hans Barstad Rainer Albertz and Lester Grabbe took a third road The essays in this volume follow that third road by applying insights from the field of philosophy of history A dozen case studies from David to the earliest Samaritans demonstrate how difficult it is to write a history of ancient Israel without falling in the abyss of an ideology in one direction or another The matrix designed by Manfred Weippert to look at the past through five windows landscape climate archaeology epigraphy and only at the end the Hebrew Bible turned out to be more helpful The conclusion of this research is that there are some stable pillars in the swamp of the past but it comes with the warning that the space between these pillars is large and cannot easily be filled

New Energies Stephen G. Gross, Andrew Needham, 2023-02-28 Over the past 250 years energy transitions have occurred repeatedly the rise of coal in the nineteenth century the explosion of oil in the twentieth century the nuclear utopianism of the 1950s and 1960s These transitions have been as revolutionary as any political or economic upheaval and they required changes in infrastructure and behavior Yet new energies never wholly replace old ones This volume historicizes energy production and consumption while demonstrating how energy use has reshaped everything from social life and economic organization to political governance It foregrounds the importance of energy for big historical questions about capitalism democracy inequality the environment and identity and it argues that energy systems themselves merit attention as key agents of historical change Given the urgency of climate change and the central position that energy plays in causing and potentially solving global warming this volume engages history as a discipline in the debate over what may be most monumental energy transition of all time the shift away from fossil fuels of every paleontologist and mammalogist The Translation of Experience Ricarda Vidal, Madeleine Campbell, 2025-02-27

Experience is a multilayered cumulative affair with transformation at its core. Its study a necessary first step for its translation requires an exploration of embodiment, the senses and cultural and social environments. The second of two volumes, this book explores how artefacts as outcomes of experience brought about by the artist/translator perform semiotic work. This semiotic work arises through the intervention of their makers but also through their viewers' audience, often through the latter's direct participation in the artefacts' creation, which we see as an open-ended process. Drawing on diverse examples from across the world, the chapters explore visual materiality, the digital world and the multisensory nature of artefacts such as monuments, festivals, theatre performances, artworks, rituals, the urban environment and human bodies, the embodied perception of which may draw holistically or variously on the haptic, olfactory, auditory, kinetic or kinaesthetic senses. Throughout the book, experiential translation is framed as a political endeavour that allows experience to be shared across linguistic, cultural, generational or gendered divides in the form of artefacts that facilitate transformation and the acquisition of knowledge. This book and its companion volume, The Experience of Translation: Materiality and Play in Experiential Translation, include an international range of contributions from graduate students and early career researchers (ECRs) to tenured academics in translation studies, comparative literature, performance arts, fine arts, media and cultural studies, as well as educators, artists and curators. It will be of particular interest to translators and arts practitioners, scholars and researchers in the transdisciplinary field of humanities.
