Practiceopolis: Stories from the Architectural Profession Yasser Megahed, 2020-07-30 This is a graphic novel about the contemporary architectural profession in which it acts as the protagonist in the form of an imaginary city called Practiceopolis The novel narrates quasi realistic stories that exaggerate the architectural everyday and the tacit in order to make them prominent and tangible They depict and dramatise the value conflicts between the different cultures of practising architecture and between the architectural profession and other members of the building industry as political conflicts around the future of Practiceopolis The book uses the metaphorical world of Practiceopolis to provoke big questions about everyday routines in the profession that practitioners may take for granted and to examine different ideologies at work among architects and other members of the construction industry The novel ends in the tradition of dystopian worlds common in a certain strand of graphic novels By vividly illustrating and narrating the critical issues he interrogates the author has created a world which any architect student or professional will both instantly recognise and simultaneously reject provoking the reader to challenge themselves and the profession at large Architect's Handbook of Professional Practice, Student Edition David S. BOOK JACKET Building Envelopes Jenny Lovel, 2013-07-02 Few parts of a building work harder than its envelope also known as its facade The envelope is the part of the building most visible from the outside so it should be visually appealing but it can also have the biggest effect on the well being and safety of its occupants so the envelope should help heat and cool the building allow light into it and provide necessary structure Too often a building's envelope is more aesthetically striking than functional or vice versa A great building envelope though architecturally integrates all of its elements

Professionalism for the Built Environment Simon Foxell, 2018-09-03 In the aftermath of the Grenfell Tower tragedy this new book provides thought provoking commentary on the nature of the relationship between society the prevailing economic system and professionalism in the built environment It addresses the changing responsibilities of professionals and in particular their obligation to act in the wider public interest It is both an introduction to and an examination of professionalism and professional bodies in the sector including a view of the future of professionalism and the organisations serving it Simon Foxell outlines the history of professionalism in the sector comparing and contrasting the development of the three major historic professions working in the construction industry civil engineering architecture and surveying He examines how their systems have developed over time up to the current period dominated by large professional services firms and looks at some options for the future whilst asking difficult questions about ethics training education public trust and expectation from within and outside the industry The book concludes with a six point plan to help if not ensure that the professions remain an effective and essential part of both society and the economy a part that allows the system to operate smoothly and easily but also fairly and to the benefit of all Essential reading for built environment professionals and students doing the professional studies elements of their training or in the process of applying for chartership or registration The issues and lessons are applicable across all building professions

Mapping the Global Architect of Alterity Michael Jensen, 2014-03-21 Due to globalization cultural spaces are now developing with no tangible connection to geographical place The territorial logic traditionally used to underpin architecture and envision our built environment is being radically altered forcing the adoption of a new method of conceptualizing space geography and what constitutes architectural practice Construction techniques design sensibilities and cultural identities are being transformed as technology transports us to places that were previously unreachable The resultant globalized architect must become more than just an artful visionary but also a master of the art of the political nudge willing to act within multiple mediums and at the simultaneous scales of a chaotic new world disorder Though fearless they must also be responsible inherently understanding the necessity to align bold visions with the mundane details of the everyday in ways that are culturally flexible and accepting of change The potential for what must be considered the legitimate practice of the architect must move from a purely material venue to one more directly engaged in the chaos of the larger economic political and social spheres of a globalizing world The issues and possible interactions with globalization contained in this text exemplify ways that architecture is transforming into a more flexible and fluid interdisciplinary version of its traditional self in order to rise to challenges of this new international terrain A theme runs throughout in the form of a call that architects must conceptually re construct their frames of reference to better align with the demands of a rapidly globalizing world Art Book News Annual, volume 4: 2008 Art Book News Annual, volume 4: 2008 , The Handbook of Architectural Practice American Institute of Architects, 1920

Preservation Education Barry L. Stiefel, Jeremy C. Wells, 2014-09-02 Over the past twenty years there has been a fundamental shift in the institutional organization of historic preservation education Historic preservation is the most recent arrival in the collection of built environment disciplines and therefore lacks the pedagogical depth and breadth found in allied endeavors such as architecture and planning As the first degree programs in preservation only date to the 1970s and the first doctoral programs to the 1990s new faculty are confronted with pedagogical challenges that are unique to this relatively nascent field Based on a conference that included educators from around the world Barry L Stiefel and Jeremy C Wells now present a collection that seeks to address fundamental issues of preservation pedagogy outcome based education and assessment and global issues of authenticity and significance in historic preservation The editors argue that the subject of the analysis has shifted from What is the best way to fix a historic building to What are the best ways for teaching people how to preserve historic properties and why according to the various standards that have been established This important reconsideration of the state of the field in historic preservation education will appeal to a broad audience across numerous disciplines
