Once upon a time, there was a crow. He had a piece of meat and sat on a branch to eat.

A hungry fox saw this, and his mouth watered when he saw the piece of meat. He thought of a plan to get it. He praised the voice of the crow. The fox started to compliment the crow on her looks and voice. The fox asked the crow, "Can you sing for me?" The crow was flattered by the fox's words and opened his mouth to sing; the piece of meat fell down. The fox ate it and went away.

The Moral of the story is Beware of flatter.

University of Michigan Official Publication ,1949 Riceyman Steps Arnold Bennett,1924 The book traces the relationship of a miserly bookseller and the woman he marries Alongside their story is the story of Elsie their servant and her love for Joe The characters bring about their own downfall or survival the book is a mixture of melancholy and hopefulness There is also an interesting portrait of an old fashioned family doctor who is the deus ex machina Although the book is set just after the end of the First World War the characters attitudes and beliefs hark back to the Victorian era rather than being influenced by any new ideas that either follows in the footsteps of other authors in a literal or secondary literary journey to real geographical places or observes the universal literary and old theoretical issues through new critical lenses. Indeed, they are often on both roads, witnessing how inextricable human efforts are to finding, identifying, and aestheticising oneself in relation to a particular space. Their contributions to this book expose how spaces were created and recreated through writing and symbolical representations in general. They also show how the images of these spaces have been changing in consent to the intentions of their visitors and reveal that persistent and obstinate moment in a space that, despite or in spite of changing perspectives, itself refuses to be changed. The book will encourage further contributions to this expanding field in the humanities. In their numerous and distinct ways, the contributions to this particular book maintain that understanding how spaces are conceived and conceptualised is of pronounced importance in the globalized world in which cultures are gradually losing authenticities while their spaces—geographical, tourist, spiritual, literary, aesthetic—are as reflective of the visitors as they are of the hosts.
