

QUESTION

1. A material with a yield strength of 100 MPa is subjected to a tensile stress of 150 MPa. What is the expected behavior of the material?

ANSWER

1. The material will undergo plastic deformation. The yield strength is the stress at which plastic deformation begins. Since the applied stress (150 MPa) is greater than the yield strength (100 MPa), the material will deform permanently.
2. The material will undergo elastic deformation. The yield strength is the stress at which plastic deformation begins. Since the applied stress (150 MPa) is greater than the yield strength (100 MPa), the material will deform permanently.
3. The material will undergo both elastic and plastic deformation. The yield strength is the stress at which plastic deformation begins. Since the applied stress (150 MPa) is greater than the yield strength (100 MPa), the material will deform permanently.
4. The material will undergo only elastic deformation. The yield strength is the stress at which plastic deformation begins. Since the applied stress (150 MPa) is greater than the yield strength (100 MPa), the material will deform permanently.
