Dictionary Catalogue of the Library of the Provincial Archives of British Columbia, Victoria Provincial Archives of British Columbia. Library,1971 Crossing Home Ground David Pitt-Brooke,2016-11-12 Like John Muir David Pitt Brooke stepped out for a walk one morning a long walk of a thousand kilometres or more through the arid valleys of southern interior British Columbia He went in search of beauty and lost grace in a landscape that has seen decades of development and upheaval In Crossing Home Ground he reports back providing a day by day account of his journey s experiences from the practical challenges dealing with blisters rain and dehydration to sublime moments of discovery and reconnection with the natural world Through the course of this journey Pitt Brooke s encounters with the natural world generate starting points for reflections on larger issues the delicate interconnections of a healthy landscape and most especially the increasingly fragile bond between human beings and their home places There is no escaping the impact of human beings on the natural world not even in the most remote countryside but he finds hope and consolation in surviving pockets of loveliness the kindness of strangers and the transformative process of the walking itself a personal pilgrimage across home ground Crossing Home Ground is a book that though rooted in one specific place and time will evoke a universal sense of recognition in a wide variety of readers It will appeal to hikers natural history enthusiasts and anyone who loves the wild countryside and is concerned about the disappearance of Canada s natural spaces Pitt Brooke s grassland odyssey is sure to become a classic of British Columbia nature writing User's Guide to the Weather Model William Paul Kemp,1989 Regenerating British Columbia's Forests R. Parish,C. M. Johnson,G. Montgomery,A. Vyse,R. A. Willis,D. Winston,D.P. Lavender,2011-11-01 Reforestation is a subject vital to the economy of British Columbia which depends heavily on its forests a valuable but expendable resource This book provides silviculturalists with a broad reference to the science and technology of reforestation in the Canadian province that forms the single most diverse forest region in North America The work combines for the first time both experiences recorded from practical reforestation projects and the results of scientific investigations The chapters of Regenerating British Columbia s Forests were compiled and reviewed by experts in each field of discussion Topics include the physiological bases for seedling vigour and the interaction of reforestation with seedling physiology the ecology of British Columbia s bioclimatic zones and the role of ecological site classification the application of financial analyses to reforestation decisions current technology in manual mechanical and chemical site preparation and in the use of fire to prepare planting sites recent progress in tree genetics and breeding and its relevance to the production of tree propagules nursery technology methodology in planting evaluation techniques of plantation release and the role of insects disease and small mammals and birds in the reforestation process Regenerating British Columbia's Forests will assist those responsible for planning reforestation projects to reach informed decisions and will challenge them to consider primarily the biological factors basic to reforestation success rather than short term costs and production technology Although its main audience is practising foresters and forestry students of British Columbia the text will be of considerable interest to foresters in other parts of Canada the United States and Europe who manage reforestation The Northwest Nature Guide James

Logan,2020-08-26 Since the 1992 Earth Summit there have been increased efforts on an international scale to address global climate change

Reducing the increased levels of CO₂ and other greenhouse gases which are believed to be contributing to this climatic change will require major effort on the part of the world's governments. This means that the environmental, economic, social and political consequences of climate change must be understood and that strategies to mitigate climate change must also address these issues. The workshop detailed in this book concentrated on how economic principles and analysis could contribute to the planning of forestry projects aimed at affecting terrestrial carbon balances. More than 30 international scientists came together for one week near Stockholm, Sweden, and divided into working groups charged with addressing a specific issue and preparing a paper within this time frame. This book contains the majority of papers presented at this meeting and includes both the working group papers and the individually presented papers.
