Thomson Reuters Journal Impact Factor List 2012:

Seeking Impact and Visibility Trotter, Henry, Kell, Catherine, 2014-06-12 African scholarly research is relatively invisible globally because even though research production on the continent is growing in absolute terms it is falling in comparative terms. In addition, traditional metrics of visibility such as the Impact Factor fail to make legible all African scholarly production. Many African universities also do not take a strategic approach to scholarly communication to broaden the reach of their scholars' work. To address this challenge, the Scholarly Communication in Africa Programme (SCAP) was established to help raise the visibility of African scholarship by mapping current research and communication practices in Southern African universities and by recommending and piloting technical and administrative innovations based on open access dissemination principles. To do this, SCAP conducted extensive research in four faculties at the Universities of Botswana, Cape Town, Mauritius, and Namibia.

Gaming the Metrics Mario Biagioli, Alexandra Lippman, 2020-01-28 How the increasing reliance on metrics to evaluate scholarly publications has produced new forms of academic fraud and misconduct. The traditional academic imperative to publish or perish is increasingly coupled with the newer necessity of impact or perish: the requirement that a publication have impact as measured by a variety of metrics including citations, views, and downloads. Gaming the Metrics examines how the increasing reliance on metrics to evaluate scholarly publications has produced radically new forms of academic fraud and misconduct. The contributors show that the metrics-based audit culture has changed the ecology of research, fostering the gaming and manipulation of quantitative indicators which lead to the invention of such novel forms of misconduct as citation rings and variously rigged peer reviews. The chapters, written by both scholars and those in the trenches of academic publication, provide a map of academic fraud and misconduct today. They consider such topics as the shortcomings of metrics, the gaming of impact factors, the emergence of so-called predatory journals, the salami slicing of scientific findings, the rigging of global university rankings, and the creation of new watchdogs and forensic practices.

The SSCI Syndrome in Higher Education Chuang Prudence Chou, 2014-02-07 As a result of the world-class university rankings, many governments adopt public incentives and sanctions to push universities to excel. Above all, the better faculty research publication in SSCI and SCI journals, the more resources and social prestige universities will obtain. This timely book attempts to relate these dilemmas in Taiwan to many non-English speaking counterparts which also struggle with the worldwide SSCI syndrome. As Taiwan's higher education system, similar to that of some other countries, has been recently devastated by the SSCI-based quantitative evaluations of academic performance in terms of its adverse impacts on the balances between teaching vs. research, qualitative vs. quantitative evaluations, globally oriented English vs. locally oriented non-English publications, and publications in academic journals vs. books, The SSCI Syndrome in Higher Education is a long overdue study that offers a systematic, comprehensive coverage of the above-mentioned SSCI syndrome on the dynamics of Taiwan's academe. This book definitely helps fill an important gap in the literature on Taiwan's higher education system Tsung Chi Professor of Politics Occidental College USA Prudence Chou's book addresses an academy on crisis caused by the ceaseless hype over university rankings It further confirms that who comes out on top depends on who is doing the ranking To save the heart and soul out of the Taiwanese academy this book makes a cogent argument for culturally responsive research in the social sciences and humanities Gerard A Postiglione Professor and Head Division of Policy Administration and Social Sciences Director Wah Ching Center of Research on Education in China The University of Hong Kong A spectre is haunting almost all universities in the world including Taiwan the spectre of indexization Academics particularly social scientists are panting from the pressure of globally spread neoliberal ideology and market based principles Collegiality on campus in the good old days has declined and managerialism gained power instead Competitive funding and university rankings are excessively emphasized and research results are required to be internationalized i e published in English Although this book is a case study of so called SSCI syndrome in Taiwan the problems and challenges as well as prescription contained here are common to all academics especially those in the non English speaking countries positioned as peripheral Yutaka Otsuka Professor of Hiroshima University President of Japan Comparative Education Society The danger with SSCI syndrome is that it encourages social studies in nonwestern societies to dissociate themselves from local contexts reflecting a particular view of what is claimed to be universal that is informed only by the Western especially English speaking world It raises the question of what counts as scholarship and defines what knowledge is and who may claim competence in it This volume serves us well as a timely reminder of such a great danger Rui Yang Professor Faculty of Education University of Hong Kong Handbook of Bibliometric Indicators Roberto Todeschini, Alberto Baccini, 2016-05-04 At last the first systematic guide to the growing jungle of citation indices and other bibliometric indicators Written with the aim of providing a complete and unbiased overview of all available statistical measures for scientific productivity the core of this reference is an alphabetical dictionary of indices and other algorithms used to evaluate the importance and impact of researchers and their institutions In 150 major articles the authors describe all indices in strictly mathematical terms without passing judgement on their relative merit From widely used measures such as the journal impact factor or the h index to highly specialized indices all indicators currently in use in the sciences and humanities are described and their application explained The introductory section and the appendix contain a wealth of valuable supporting information on data sources tools and techniques for bibliometric and scientometric analysis for individual researchers as well as their funders and publishers Handbook of Research on Scholarly Publishing and Research Methods Wang, Viktor, 2014-12-31 For faculty to advance their careers in higher education publishing is essential A competitive marketplace strict research standards and scrupulous tenure committees are all challenges academicians face in publishing their research and achieving tenure at their institutions The Handbook of Research on Scholarly Publishing and Research Methods assists researchers in navigating the field of scholarly publishing through a careful analysis of multidisciplinary research topics and recent trends
