is designed to guide the parents in incorporating a child's therapies and classroom learning into their everyday family life. Part I of this book provides the foundation to understand autism and how it may be affecting the child. This knowledge is the building block for a child's home program. In the early pages the reader is introduced to the idea of creating a 24/7 Parent Plan to guide a child through life. Here the reader will find templates and examples for an individualized family program. Although the reader may eventually design his own forms and templates, having this pattern to follow will help families along that path. The authors discuss the various strategies and techniques available to parents in essence creating each family's own personal toolbox. The tools presented by the authors include the family's goals, the equipment they may find useful, predictability, scheduling, and coping strategies. Part II introduces the reader to a variety of interventions that may be tailored to meet a child's communication, behavioral, social, and sensory needs. The authors share strategies and techniques to assist the caregivers in teaching the child through play, reading, language activities, social activities, and cooking. This section provides a glossary-style comprehensive listing of helpful strategies and tools to fully understand autism and implement whichever lessons apply to your child. Each of 26 alphabetically arranged lessons addresses various aspects of communication, behavior, sensory needs, and social skills. Elizabeth shares Parent to Parent Tips, and Dr. Barboa includes Professional Tips for each lesson. Whether a child is lost in another world or merely has a toe pointed in that direction, time is of the essence. Each moment is precious, so family time must be used wisely. In Tic Toc Autism Clock, the authors give the reader the tools and the hope needed to make every minute count. Armed with a 24/7 Parent Plan, families can move forward on the incredible journey they have before them. Tic Toc Autism Clock Elizabeth Obrey, Brenda Bradshaw, Linda Barboa, 2015-10.
