Black Tax Niq Mhlango, 2019-09-12 The real significance of this book lies in the fact that it tells us more about the everyday life of black South Africans. It delves into the essence of black family life and the secret anguish of family members who often battle to cope. Niq Mhlango, A secret torment for some, a proud responsibility for others, black tax is a daily reality for thousands of black South Africans. In this thought provoking and moving anthology, a provocative range of voices share their deeply personal stories. With the majority of black South Africans still living in poverty today, many black middle class households are connected to working class or jobless homes. Some believe supporting family members is an undeniable part of African culture and question whether it should even be labelled as a kind of tax. Others point to the financial pressure it places on black students and professionals who, as a consequence, struggle to build their own wealth. Many feel they are taking over what is essentially a government responsibility. The contributions also investigate the historical roots of black tax, the concept of the black family and the black middle class. In giving voice to so many different perspectives, Black Tax hopes to start a dialogue on this widespread social phenomenon. FCS Criminal Justice Structures and Mandates L3, 2009

Police Integrity in South Africa Sanja Kutnjak Ivkovich, Adri Sauerman, 2020-04-29 Policing in South Africa has gained notoriety through its extensive history of oppressive law enforcement. In 1994, as the country's apartheid system was replaced with a democratic order, the new government faced the significant challenge of transforming the South African police force into a democratic police agency, the South African Police Service (SAPS), that would provide unbiased policing to all the country's people. More than two decades since the initiation of the reforms, it appears that the SAPS has rapidly developed a reputation as a police agency beset by challenges to its integrity. This book offers a unique perspective by providing in-depth analyses of police integrity in South Africa. It is a case study that systematically and empirically explores the contours of police integrity in a young democracy. Using the organizational theory of police integrity, the book analyzes the complex set of historical, legal, political, social, and economic circumstances shaping police integrity. A discussion of the theoretical framework is accompanied by the results of a nationwide survey of nearly 900 SAPS officers probing their familiarity with official rules, their expectations of discipline within the SAPS, and their willingness to report misconduct. The book also examines the influence of the respondents' race, gender, and supervisory status on police integrity. Written in a clear and direct style, this book will appeal to students and scholars of criminology, policing, sociology, political science, as well as to police administrators interested in expanding their knowledge about police integrity and enhancing it in their organizations.

This Week in South Africa, 1998 A weekly news summary of the major daily newspapers in the Pretoria-Johannesburg metropolitan area. The South African Intelligence Services Kevin A. O'Brien, 2010-11 This book is the first full history of South African intelligence and provides a detailed examination of the various stages in the evolution of South Africa's intelligence organizations and structures. Covering the apartheid period of 1948-90, the transition from apartheid to democracy of 1990-94 and the post apartheid period of new intelligence dispensation from 1994-2005 this book examines not only the apartheid government's intelligence dispensation and operations but also those of the African National Congress and its partner the South African Communist Party (ANC-SACP) as well as those of other liberation movements and the independent homelands under the apartheid system. Examining the civilian military and police intelligence structures and operations in all periods as well as the extraordinarily complicated apartheid government's security bureaucracy or securocracy and its structures and units, the book discusses how South Africa's Cold War position influenced its relationships with various other world powers especially where intelligence co-operation came to bear. It outlines South Africa's regional relationships and concerns the foremost being its activities in South West Africa (Namibia) and its relationship with Rhodesia through 1980. Finally it examines the various legislative and other governance bases for the existence and operations of South Africa's intelligence structures in all periods and the influences that such activities as the Rivonia Trial at one end of the history or the Truth and Reconciliation Commission at the other end had on the evolution of these intelligence questions throughout South Africa's modern history. This book will be of great interest to all students of South African politics, intelligence studies and international politics in general.

Educator Supply and Demand in the South African Public Education System Education Labour Relations Council (South Africa), 2005. This report is an integration of the seven reports which emerged from the research and pulls together the findings arising from it. What emerges is that the resignation, death and ageing of the present educator force is likely to have a significant effect on replacement demand for educators over the next four years.

Women in Policing around the World Venessa Garcia, 2021-03-24. Women in Policing around the World is a historical, legal, political and social examination of women in policing. The book opens with a comparison of cultural definitions of gender and how this affects women's work in general and policing specifically. The book then takes the reader through women in policing in the Eastern and Western Hemispheres featuring several countries within the major regions of the world. Major commonalities and differences are identified in the areas of recruitment, training, deployment, promotion and violence against women. Among the key features of this book is a balanced coverage of historical and timely events that led to the current status of women police in their respective countries. The book identifies the commonalities that women police experience throughout the world, relying on the most current research. The book also dedicates coverage of policing violence against women in society as well as within the police organization itself. The author includes tables to allow for national comparisons throughout the book as well as current and historical photos. This book is intended for researchers and students of police culture and women in policing. It does not rely heavily on one country or region, thus allowing for an enlightening international comparison.

Fortnightly Digest of South African Affairs, 1962. Sexual Abuse of Young Children in Southern Africa Human Sciences Research Council, 2004. With contributions from leading legal and policy researchers, clinical practitioners and child development specialists in southern Africa, this volume is an invitation to reflect on the many sided nature of sexual abuse of young children Many of the contributors propose effective ways to prevent abuse or improve care and services for the many affected children and their families The book is in five parts The opening section confronts the realities of sexual abuse of pre pubertal children and the way abuse is represented in the press The second section discusses the individual and socio cultural causes of child sexual abuse Section three covers legal and policy responses to the problem while the fourth section presents a series of accounts of interventions on behalf of abused children drawn from South Africa Mozambique and Zimbabwe The book concludes with some critical reflections on research in this area Servamus ,2006
