Abstract: This study was designed to assess the effects of a 12-week, 1000 kcal/day energy-restricted diet on the body composition and metabolic profile of obese women. The study was conducted in a clinical setting and involved 20 obese women who were randomly assigned to either a control group or an intervention group. The intervention group followed a 12-week, 1000 kcal/day energy-restricted diet, while the control group maintained their current diet. Body composition was measured using dual-energy X-ray absorptiometry (DXA) at baseline and at 12 weeks. Metabolic profile was assessed using a series of blood tests, including fasting glucose, insulin, and lipid levels. The results showed that the intervention group experienced significant weight loss and improvements in body composition, including a decrease in fat mass and an increase in lean mass. Additionally, the intervention group showed improvements in metabolic profile, including a decrease in fasting glucose and insulin levels, and an increase in HDL cholesterol levels. These findings suggest that a 12-week, 1000 kcal/day energy-restricted diet can effectively improve body composition and metabolic profile in obese women.
