The Spade as Mighty as the Sword Daniel Smith, 2013-02-25 The little known history of the Garden Front Britain's wildly successful vegetable growing campaign during WWII A fascinating story Northern Echo After food rationing was introduced in 1940 and German U boats began threatening merchant shipping bringing in essential foodstuffs the Ministry of Agriculture decided something had to be done to make the kitchens of Britain more self sufficient The result was an amazingly effective campaign Dig for Victory encouraging every man and woman to turn their garden or even the grass verge in their street over to cultivating vegetables By 1942 half the population were taking part and even the Royal Family had sacrificed their rose beds for growing onions Now Daniel Smith tells the full story of this remarkable wartime episode when spades forks and bean canes became weapons the ordinary citizen could take up against the enemy It had tangible benefits for the war effort in that shipping could be reallocated for munitions instead of food imports as well as for the health of the nation in encouraging a diet of fresh fruit and veg The campaign also created unexpected celebrities like C H Middleton whose wartime BBC radio talks on gardening reached a vast audience and even sowed the seeds for the modern allotment movement Ultimately it is a war story without fighting or killing one that shows how even The Little Man with the Spade in the words of the Minister for Agriculture at the time did his bit for Victory Engaging The Sunday Times An inspirational account Lancashire Evening Post

Spuds, Spam and Eating For Victory Katherine Knight, 2011-10-21 The battle to keep the nation fed during the Second World War was waged by an army of workers on the land and the resourcefulness of the housewives on the Kitchen Front The rationing of food clothing and other substances played a big part in making sure that everyone had a fair share of whatever was available In this fascinating book Katherine Knight looks at how experiences of rationing varied between rich and poor town and country and how ingenious cooks often made a meal from poor ingredients Charting the developments of the rationing programme throughout the war and afterwards Spuds Spam and Eating for Victory documents the use of substitutions for luxury ingredients not available resulting in delicacies such as carrot jam and oatmeal sausages The introduction of Spam in America in the forties led to this canned spiced pork and ham becoming an iconic symbol of the worse period of shortage in the twentieth century Seventy years after the outbreak of the Second World War this book listens to some of the people who were young during the conflict share their memories both sad and funny of what it was like to eat for Victory
