Shaping U.S. Military Forces for the Asia-Pacific Michael R. Kraig,2014-06-04 The first twenty years of post Cold War US defense and diplomatic policies toward Asia have looked a good deal like the previous 50 namely continued deterrence based upon overwhelming offensive military predominance In East Asia all powers harbor common and divergent interests based on fragmented nationalist identities and complex economic interdependence In this multipolar Asian system new Chinese military capabilities could support both the wish to secure its own interests as well as a more expansive vision for regional leadership which might harbor a destabilizing geopolitical agenda How the United States addresses this reality via military procurements and employment concepts for the Asian theater could either detract from or enhance crisis stability The US defense establishment must reorient its force posture to save money manage conflicts of interest and prevent future interstate crises This analysis provides a framework for how the United States should ideally structure and use military power so as to best support the diplomatic resolution of conflicting interests without resorting to full scale warfare It also critiques the usual Western military focus on offensive strategic predominance in force postures itself often fuelled by the unrealistic pursuit of the opponent's complete submission via victory in decisive battles

Modern Chinese Warfare, 1795-1989 Bruce A. Elleman,2005-07-28 Why did the Chinese empire collapse and why did it take so long for a new government to reunite China Modern Chinese Warfare 1795 1989 seeks to answer these questions by exploring the most important domestic and international conflicts over the past two hundred years from the last half of the Qing empire through to modern day China It reveals how most of China s wars during this period were fought to preserve unity in China and examines their distinctly cyclical pattern of imperial decline domestic chaos and finally the creation of a new unifying dynasty By 1989 this cycle appeared complete but the author asks how long this government will be able to hold power Exposing China as an imperialist country and one which has often manipulated western powers in its favour Bruce Elleman seeks to redress the views of China as a victimised nation
